

Does your child have autism spectrum disorder?

Researchers at the Ohio State University are currently looking for children and adolescents with autism spectrum disorder and an accompanying caregiver to participate in a study titled:

Self-reported internalizing disorders and social support in youth with autism spectrum disorder

You may qualify if you have a child with autism spectrum disorder ages 10 – 17

Your child does not need to have a depression or anxiety diagnosis to participate

This study consists of two Zoom visits. It will gather information on your child's anxiety symptoms, depressive symptoms and perceived social support. This study will help researchers learn how to better measure depressive and anxiety symptoms in children with autism spectrum disorder, and how social support from parents, teachers and friends related to these symptoms.

Participants will receive a $10 gift card after the first visit and a $20 gift card after the second.
